SOS Children's Village SOS Children's Village, formerly SOS Children's Villages International, is a global non-profit organization that provides around the clock care for children whose parents are unable to care for them due to hardship. It runs over 1,600 facilities, called SOS Children's Villages, in over 70 countries, including Peru, South Africa, Mexico, Tajikistan, and Japan. History SOS Children's Village was founded in 1981 in Vienna, Austria by Andreas von Werlhof, a psychiatrist. After a second child was born with cerebral palsy, he wished to prevent other children from facing a similar fate. When he realized that his wish was out of reach, he decided to establish a children's home in Vienna to serve as a training ground for parents of handicapped children. Since its founding, SOS Children's Villages has expanded its worldwide network and today operates over 1,600 SOS Children's Villages throughout 70 countries, with a focus on children's health and wellbeing. The organization now has three independent governance structures: SOS International, SOS Austria, and SOS Japan. In addition to caring for children, SOS Children's Villages focuses on raising awareness of global child poverty and advocating for its solution. SOS Children's Village in the United States was founded in 1983 in Battle Creek, Michigan, by Angel Tompkins. Today there are 12 SOS Children's Villages in the United States, primarily in the Midwest, although there are also facilities in Los Angeles, Texas, New York City, and Washington, D.C. In South Africa, SOS Children's Village Boipatong provides care to several hundred babies and children each year 82157476af
